Why this webinar?

This webinar is brought to you by WG 1 (Global ISM flows and trends at the macro level). As the first of the series, we will start by addressing (1) the common challenges in international student mobility mapping and projection, and (2) a timely topic on forcibly displaced people's access into higher education. Both talks will be presented by our in-house experts of ENIS based on previous projects and studies. Following the talks, participants are welcome to interact with the speakers and other participants by bringing to the table related mobility mapping issues and scenarios for discussion.

The webinar aims at not only sharing knowledge in the network but collecting feedback from members for future collaboration.

Who should attend?

The webinar targets primarily members of the ENIS community. However, you are welcome to bring along other colleagues interested in the announced topics. Feel free to share the Zoom link within your organization.
